Paris, City of Love. The most romantic city in the world. A place where starry-eyed lovers stroll hand-in-hand along the River Seine or linger in sidewalk cafes speaking French, the “language of love.” A city whose beauty strikes us at every corner, with its elegant architecture, iconic monuments, and the subtle combination of art, history and nature, creating the perfect canvas on which love can be conceived and painted into its own masterpiece.

Standing above the city is the most romantic of places, the Eiffel Tower. With its glittering lights illuminating the birth of evening, couples share romantic moments, wedding engagements and honeymoons, which create memories that will last an eternity.

Thomas Kinkadee loved Paris and the great tradition of artists and work that have flowed from its studios for centuries. He painted the city often, always capturing its magnificent surroundings and that romantic “magic” in the air.

The Thomas Kinkadee Vault presents a romantic vision of Paris. Find yourself strolling with someone you love down its streets or through this canvas masterpiece, and you will understand why Paris is called, the City of Love.

Key Points

- Thom loved Paris. The city life, the street food and the people intrigued and inspired him and his paintings.
- Thom painted many Paris city scenes in his traditional style, Plein Air and under his pseudonym, Robert Girard. These titles include Paris, Eiffel Tower; Paris, City of Lights; Evening on the Seine; Notre Dame, Paris and Montmartre among others.
- Thom can be seen on the left side of the painting along the Seine. This is the same spot where he painted during his visit to Paris with his father and brother, Patrick.
- Their visit to Paris was part of European trip where Thom and Pat retraced the route of their father's World War II experiences.
- 20 hearts are hidden in the painting representing the 20 arrondissements (administrative districts). The map below shows their exact placement.
